TWENTY-EIGHTH YEAR.

SALT LAKE HONORED THE SLEEPING HEROES

Memorial Day Exercises Aroused Deeper Interest Than For Many Years.

Beautiful Ceremonies at the Cemetery and Exercises at G. A. R. Hall—Oration By General Penrose.

Despite the great attractions at the various resorts, attractions that appealed so powerfully to the love of pleasure and excitement, Memorial day this year was observed better in Salt Lake than for several years past and aroused a more general interest. It must be that the war with Spain in the past year has aroused the memories of that old war of thirty-five years ago, and sorrow that has come into the homes of this city so lately stirred the people afresh to a sense of the duty they owe to the veterans who sleep in the cities of the dead.

There seemed to be a sadder strain in the funeral dirge yesterday because of the bright young lives gone out across the sea; there seemed a more thoughtful expression on the faces of the crowd as they watched the old veterans march slowly by. Memorial day with all its stands for was closer than it had ever been before. It was easier to understand how the veterans would resist all temptations to pleasure in order that they might strew flowers on their comrades' graves. This re-awakening interest was manifested by the presence in the processions of state and city officials and organizations that had never taken part before. It was manifested by the profusion of flowers contributed and by the large crowd that gathered at the cemetery to decorate the graves of their own dear ones as well as those of the soldiers, and to witness the interesting exercises of the day.

Procession Formed.

Nature did her full duty on this occasion, and when the veterans of McKean and Maxwell posts descended from their hall on Second South, they were greeted with a bright sun, blue skies and a bracing atmosphere, while flags everywhere added to the beauty of the scene. The procession formed at the intersection of Main and Second South under the orders of W. D. Corcoran, marshal of the day. Major W. Stanton commanded the veterans of McKean post and William M. Owen, Maxwell post. The following was the order of procession:

Marshal of the day, W. D. Corcoran. Band. Buried cavalry of the war with Spain, under Captain Calver. Mayor and council. National Guard of Utah. Odd Fellows. Department commander and staff. Grand Army posts and other old soldiers. Citizens.

The procession moved west on Second South to West Temple to the music of Christensen's band; north on West Temple to First South, east on First South to Main, north on Main to Brigham, countermarched on Main to Second South, east on Second South to State, where cars were taken for the streets along the line of march.

Exercises at Cemetery.

At the cemetery, grouped around the monument erected in honor of the soldier dead, with the beautiful snow-capped mountains for a background and the valley at their feet, this little remnant of the Grand Army of the Union performed their ritualistic ceremony in honor of their dead comrades.

In the center of the group stood Governor Wells and staff, the veterans of McKean and Maxwell posts, and a large concourse of their friends. The beautiful G. A. R. service for the dead was read by William M. Owen, commander of the Maxwell post. Prayer was offered by Rev. F. L. Crandall and Lincoln's Gettysburg address, that classic of American literature, was read by Adjutant R. G. Senter.

For the Unknown Dead. Then followed an invocation service for the unknown dead, conducted by the Woman's Relief Corps, led by Mrs. William M. Owen and Mrs. W. B. Short. This is the first time this service was ever used and commends itself by its beauty and appropriateness to all. It will come in general use. "The record of the unknown dead," it says, "is written in the hearts of a grateful people and on the pages of the history of our saved country, and while the stars and stripes they died to save from dishonor wave over it, their deeds shall be told as a memorial of them."

At the close of the services a salute for the dead was fired by a detachment of the Twenty-fourth infantry from Fort Douglas. Then under the direction of Daniel Finnerman, officer of the day, the graves of all soldiers were profusely decorated with flowers and it is worthy of note that the order of the day issued by Department Commander Stanton, J. K. Kain said: "Let not the graves of the Confederate soldiers be forgotten," and they were not forgotten, but treated just as were the graves of the Union soldiers.

SERVICES AT THE HALL.

Memorial Day Oration Delivered By General Penrose.

The G. A. R. hall was crowded for the evening services. This meeting was presided over by M. M. Kaighn, who opened with appropriate remarks, followed with prayer by Rev. Henry. Then came the song "America" by the audience. Following this Mrs. Fred W. Price was introduced and delivered a eulogy to G. A. R. so eloquent that it brought forth rounds of applause at its close. Fred A. Graham then sang a patriotic solo that stirred the audience to such a pitch of enthusiasm that he was forced to respond to the encore. Colonel George H. Squires was next called upon and recited a poem, "Fidelity, Charity and Loyalty," and won repeated cheers from the audience.

General Penrose's Oration.

General W. H. Penrose was introduced after another song and spoke briefly and eloquently, being forced to pause again and again by the cheering of the crowd. After reviewing the work done by the veterans of the war, their services and their sufferings, the duty we owe to the

An Automobile System For Salt Lake City.

COMPANY BEING FORMED

A BRANCH OF WHITNEY-WIDENER-ELKINS AFFAIR.

Will Supplant All Horse Vehicles, and Give Delivery System to Merchants, Trucks to Manufacturers and Jobbers and Do a General Express, Transfer, Cab Business.

(Special to The Herald.) New York, May 30.—It was learned today that the Whitney-Widener-Elkins electric vehicle syndicate will shortly introduce in Salt Lake an automobile cab, delivery and express wagon service of far-reaching effect. Steps are now being taken quietly for the formation of a company of local capitalists in Salt Lake, which will have the direct management of the concern's business in that city, though the present company in New York will probably retain a controlling interest in the stock.

The plan is to supply a complete cab service, which will practically do away with all horse vehicles in public use in Salt Lake, as well as a delivery system for merchants and a truck system for manufacturers and jobbers; also a general express and transfer business.

The Salt Lake Electric Vehicle company will be one of about a dozen now being organized in cities chosen for the immediate introduction of automobiles. Its effect will be prodigious on all lines of business, the company proposing to go so far as to compete with street railways for passenger traffic.

Filipinos Made Friendly Demonstration, Then Slaughtered Victims.

Body of the Unfortunate Soldier Burned at Manila With Notable Ceremony—Two Officers of the Hospital Ship Relief Either Killed or Captured By the Insurgents—Claim That Otis Must Have More Troops to Conquer Rebels.

New York, May 31.—A dispatch to the Journal and Advertiser from London, says: A special dispatch from Labun announced that severe fighting is reported between Americans and Filipinos on the island of Mindanao. The principal city on the island, Zamboanga, has been bombarded and burned and is in ruins. The same dispatch reports trouble in Sulu. The Americans have blockaded the port. A British steamer was denied admission and was escorted seaward by the United States gunboat Castine.

Washington, May 30.—The two following dispatches were received at the war department today and give the first details of Captain Tilly's death on the island of Negros:

"Hilo, May 30.—Adjutant General, Washington: Captain George H. Tilly, U. S. V., signal corps, was killed at Escalante, east coast of the island of Negros by insurgents Saturday, May 27, 11 o'clock a. m. Details not known; buried at Hilo May 30."

"Manila, May 30.—Adjutant General, Washington: Cable company's vessel playing cable between Hilo and Cebu ran to Escalante, east coast of Negros, to remove old cable connections. Captain Tilly, signal corps, accompanied, and with captain of the vessel and three men, visited the town, the natives making friendly demonstrations. While there, rebels ambushed the vessels. The captain and one man escaped to the vessel in a launch. Tilly and two men taking to water and were not rescued. The vessel then reported at Hilo. General Smith was informed and he immediately took seventy-five men and proceeded to Escalante. This morning the body of Captain Tilly was found floating in the river. There were marks of violence on the head. The body was sent to Hilo. Smith remains at Escalante for the present."

"OTIS, CAPTAIN TILLY IS BURIED. His Remains Found and Forwarded to Hilo."

Manila, May 30.—Brigadier General South, who was sent with a detachment of troops on a gunboat in search of Captain George H. Tilly, of the signal corps, reported missing at Escalante, on the island of Negros, sent the body of Captain Tilly to Hilo today on board a launch.

The body of Captain Tilly was buried later in the day with notable ceremony. English friends of the captain joined with his comrades of the signal corps in arranging for the funeral and heaped wreaths of flowers upon the coffin of the dead soldier.

General South remains at Escalante with his soldiers to search for the missing men who were with Captain Tilly when he met his death.

General Otis has not a sufficient number of men to accomplish this end. It is believed that he has so informed the war department, but the officials will not admit it. They do admit, however, that the outlook for an early peace is very gloomy and that more troops are badly needed in the Philippines.

Just how to meet this situation is a question which confronts them and requires prompt decision. Although General Otis states that he will continue an aggressive campaign during the rainy season, it is appreciated that he will be able to do little more than harass some of the points which the forces under General MacArthur and Lawton have taken, and hold them un-

MIXED IN FAMOUS CASE

SAYS HE IS ROBERT NUGENT, MINER OF HEBER.

Accused of Being Implicated In the Abduction of Little Marion Clark, Which Case Is Puzzling the Metropolitan Police—Fled When Approached By An Officer.

(Special to The Herald.) New York, May 30.—Robert Nugent, lately arrived from Salt Lake City, walked into Frederick Salzer's candy shop, 215 Nassau street, Brooklyn, yesterday, and asked for a match. While he was talking to Salzer the shopkeeper's baby toddled in.

"That's a pretty baby," said the man. "You'd better look out, she'll meet the fate of Marion Clark."

The shopkeeper laughed, and the man, he says, talked volubly about the case. Presently Salzer got interested at Nugent's manner and began to ask questions. Then, he says, the stranger grew nervous and breaking away ran out of the shop. Salzer pursued, just beyond the shop he met Patrolman Byrnes of the Fulton street station, and excitedly bade him arrest the man.

Fled From Police.

"What for," asked the policeman. "Arrest him," cried the shopkeeper, "he says he knows where Marion Clark is hidden."

The policeman ran after the stranger after a chase of three blocks he caught him. "Here, let go of me," said the man indignantly. "What are you bothering me about anyway?"

Byrnes took him to the police station and Salzer followed. There Salzer repeated his charge. "When I spoke of the Clark case," said he, "this man told me he knew all about it. He said he knew where the baby was; who had taken her, and why it was done."

"That's a lie," said the man. "I never mentioned the Clark case to him. I went into his shop to get a match, and took a small piece of candy. I probably didn't pay him soon enough so he's done this to get even with me."

A Utah Miner.

The police cross-questioned him. He said he was Robert Nugent, a miner of Heber, Utah, and that recently he had come east. He has been living at the Occidental hotel in the Bowery. He said he had gone to Brooklyn in search of places to canvass. In his pockets was found a card bearing the name William F. Jackson, "rag time pianist."

Nugent was taken to police headquarters and again questioned. There he was arraigned in a police court and held as a vagrant in order to give the police an opportunity to investigate.

The man Salzer is said to be a reporter. "I never mentioned the Clark case to him. It is an outrage to hold a man on a charge like this. I'll make him suffer for it."

TOOK A TRIP IN A BALLOON

KANSAS MAN DROPS 500 FEET AND WILL LIVE.

Wind Capsized the Bag of Gas and the Parachute Failed to Work—Fell In Some Trees.

Kansas City, Mo., May 30.—Howard Twiss, son of a former mayor of Kansas City, Kan., borrowed a balloon and attempted an ascension and parachute jump today at Chelsea park, a suburban resort on the Kansas side of the line. He ascended, as it appeared to the spectators, full 60 feet, when the balloon was caught in a sudden blast of wind and carried.

The parachute failed to work, and young Twiss, the balloon and the parachute tumbled to the earth. Luckily, the young aeronaut and his trappings fell first into the branches of a big tree, through which Twiss came tumbling to the ground. He was picked up unconscious and carried to a hospital. The surgeons found several broken bones, but Twiss has recovered his senses and the doctor says he will live.

CHARGE IS KIDNAPING HONOR SOLDIER DEAD IN MANILA

Memorial Day Is Celebrated By the American Troops.

SILK FLAG PLACED ABOVE EACH MOUND

Impressive Scenes Over the Graves of Fallen Heroes.

Ceremonies at the National Cemetery at Arlington—Battleship Maine Decorated With Flowers in the Harbor of Havana—General Wheeler Delivers the Address in Boston—How the Day Was Observed in Other Cities.

Manila, May 30.—Memorial day was celebrated at Battery Knoll, where Scott's guns were planted against the Filipino trenches in the first day's fighting at Manila. Nearly 200 soldiers lie buried there on a bleak mound, surrounded by rice fields, rough boards marking the graves, which are ranged in five uniform rows. Beyond these are Spanish blockhouses and bamboo hedges, which were mown by shells from the American guns.

The few soldiers who could be spared from the trenches came to Battery Knoll, dressed in regulation, bearing flowers with which to strew their comrades' graves. A silk flag was placed above each mound.

The day was as mild as a New England spring day when just before sunset a few hundred Americans gathered in a circle around Battery Knoll in blue and brown uniforms. Among the soldiers were groups of American Indians and brown-faced natives peering curiously at the unaccustomed spectacle from points near by. The guns of the monitor Monadnock, however, were a significant reminder of the nearness of war.

Was a Solemn Scene.

Just as the Sixth artillery band began a dirge the thunder of the Monadnock's guns ceased, while the taps sounded from the bugle.

Charles Denby of the United States Philippine commission presided at the exercises. He spoke briefly of the peculiar solemnity of the day to Manila. The chaplain of the British cruiser Powerful, an invocation, Chaplain Pierce of the Twenty-third infantry and Chaplain Cressey of the Minnesota volunteers delivered orations and the soldiers sang appropriate hymns. After this occurred the graves were decorated with a vast quantity of magnificent flowers.

Similar services were held over the dead in the Pao cemetery this afternoon. Colonel Denby was the orator of this occasion. The graves were decorated with a vast quantity of magnificent flowers.

High mass for the dead of the Roman Catholic community was celebrated at the Pao cemetery in the morning. Orations were delivered by Fathers McKinnon and Chaplain Stevenson of the Idaho regiment. A Methodist and a Presbyterian, a Congregational clergyman of Boston.

Most of the business places of Manila were closed in observance of the day. The American army and foreign flags were displayed at half-mast. The graves of soldiers and sailors buried at Cavite and Hilo were also decorated today.

AT THE NATIONAL CEMETERY.

Impressive Ceremonies the Feature at Arlington.

Washington, May 30.—The national capital devoted itself to the observance of Decoration day. The departments were closed, public and private business was suspended. The parade started early in the day, traversing the principal streets. Aside from the many Grand Army posts and veteran organizations represented, the parade was made up of the national guard of the district and of the naval battalion turned out. The blue jackets from the dispatch boat Dolphin were also in line.

The ceremony at Arlington was notable by the presence of the president and members of his cabinet and of many leading officers of the army and navy, as well as officials prominent in public life. It began at noon with the firing of a national salute.

The services were two fold, the veterans of the field gathering in the amphitheatre, while those of the navy met in front of the historic Lee mansion. Decoration of the graves was a solemn and impressive feature of the exercises, in which the entire gathering joined. The procession formed south of the mansion and headed by the marine band, marched through long avenues of graves to the national cemetery, where the graves of the unknown dead, the procession halted and the band played a dirge, while tender hands draped the monument with the national colors and festooned it with flags and flowers.

Returning to the amphitheatre, the formal exercises began with the sounding of the assembly by a bugler and the reading of the order of services by General Calvin Farnsworth, department commander. G. A. R. and preceding officer. These consisted of patriotic music, the reading of Lincoln's address at Gettysburg, original poems breathing the patriotic spirit and an oration by Webster Davis, assistant secretary of the interior, the naval ceremony in front of the Lee mansion was unique in presenting a review of the navy during the civil war. His speech was a recital of the heroism which the naval conflicts inspired, and of the gradual rebuilding of an American navy, which is at once "the pride of the United States and the wonder and dread of all Europe."

The achievements of our navy during the late war were eloquently pictured by Dr. Frank Bristol, while Assistant Attorney General Hough and Dr. Mabry discussed other naval perils.

At the soldiers' home, congressional and other ceremonies, patriotic and religious services accompanied the strewing of the graves with flowers. The address at soldiers' home was delivered by General George D. Ruggles, governor of the home, while many other prominent veterans took part. The smaller cemeteries were not neglected.

COMMANDER OWEN READING SERVICES FOR THE DEAD.

Schenck, Mrs. Jennie Farnsworth and Mrs. Fred W. Price.

To decorate the graves at Fort Douglas were detailed C. M. Berry, C. M. Hammond, Thomas Harris and C. W. Schnell.

Services were held at both of these cemeteries before the regular services at Mt. Olivet.

Two of the veterans of this city died during the past year, Captain D. R. Stover of McKean post and James G. Glancy of Maxwell post.

Of the young soldiers Sergeant Harry A. Young, Sergeant Ford Fisher, Corporal John G. Young, Corporal John J. Kennedy, Musician Fred B. Fowler and Privates Al Snowden, George H.
